OS X-native DiskWarrior Set Loose

Rusty Little of Spring, Texas-based Alsoft, Inc. demonstrated the new, OS X-native version of its widely acclaimed drive utility software, DiskWarrior, at HAAUG's April General Meeting.

DiskWarrior version 3 rebuilds and optimizes hard drive directories. It can revive "dead" hard drives and optimize working ones so they work more efficiently.

Alsoft is now offering HAAUG members a special discount on DiskWarrior 3 through May 30. Call 281-353-4090 and mention the HAAUG-user-group discount to upgrade from DiskWarrior 2 for only $32.29, or buy the full version of DiskWarrior 3 for just $60.

Software CD Set for May Release

HAAUG's new CD features the latest OS X system upgrades and some utilities recommended by Bob LeVitus at MacFest.

HAAUG's software CD is free to brand-new members and costs $10 for existing members. The CD should be available at the general meeting on Saturday, May 17

MacFest Wows Crowd

By David Crook

The first-ever MacFest proved to be a walloping success, undoubtedly leaving all those who attended better equipped to face the, well, "MacFuture."

Some 60 Apple polishers gathered on April 26 at the Courtyards by Marriott on the West Loop for MacFest's offerings—three concurrently held workshops and a hands-on help session, each held first in the morning and then repeated later that afternoon, following a lunch-time buffet.

Perhaps the most widely anticipated of MacFest's offerings was the talk by Bob LeVitus, the syndicated "Dr. Mac" columnist, whose home base is the Houston Chronicle. Details of LeVitus's OS X discussion follow below.

Also of wide interest was Isabelle MacCrimmon's Adobe Photoshop workshop and Bethany Mitchell's take on Microsoft Office for Mac OS X, details of which also follow.

Finally, Bob Lewis, of MacLewis Consulting, and George McKenzie, of Startronics, helped out all comers

Call to Order: 6:30 p.m. by President David Jaschke.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Mort Butler announced that MacNN and MacCentral have posted notices about MacFest.

David Crook apologized for not publishing an Apple Barrel for the last several months. He resigned as editor but he will help out with the making of the newsletter.

REPORTS

Secretary: Lyda McGhee – The March minutes were lost but we will try to reconstruct them.

1st Vice President: Rex Covington – List of upcoming presentations for 2003:

April: Alsoft – DiskWarrior

May: MovieWorks

June: VectorWorks

July: Swap Meet – tentative date July 19th

August: Dantz – Retrospect (confirmation not yet received)

September: This is our 25th anniversary meeting. Steve Wozniak will be here.

October: SuperCard for OS X

2nd Vice President: Joe Kudrna – The March meeting at Rice went well except that there was no shuttle in the afternoon. We will be at Rice in April and it is possible that there may be some parking problems since the new gates will be up by then. Joe and Rex are working on both the parking and the shuttle problems. The September meeting will be held at UH in the Houston Room since we are expecting a large turnout for Steve Wozniak.

Treasurer: Barbara Long – We have $15,618.72 in the bank and all bills are paid as of today.

Membership: Mike Lawshae – Current membership is 425. Mike will start handing out the class schedule from the Apple Store at the membership desk.

Apple Barrel: Vacancy – George Sroka has gotten some volunteers to help and we WILL have an Apple Barrel this month. Copy Doctor will print and mail the newsletter.

Apple Barrel Ad Manager: Vacancy – no report was given.

Mac Librarian: Mort Butler – Welcome back, Mort! There are enough CD's available for a couple of months but Mort will start working on creating a new CD for OS 9 and for OS X.

HAAUG Boutique: Vacancy – Barbara Long has been kind enough to help out but we really need a new boutique manager. One T-shirt was sold last month.

HAAUG Hotline: David Trevas – The hotline seems to be working OK and we have gotten a couple of new members.

HAAUG Heaven: Randy Herzstein – Randy is becoming more familiar with some of the new features of the upgrade. He is still working on a viable solution for the junk mail problem.

HAAUGNet: Jeff Davis – The new website, www.haaugnet.org, has support and forums online so that HAAUGNet members can get help quickly. IAPC will be moving soon to Greenway Plaza and so, of course, will HAAUGNet. Nationwide dialup service will be effective by May 1 as well as the ability to get mail online and send mail behind firewalls. We have thirteen HAAUGNet members and several potential DSL customers.

Webmaster: Isabel MacCrimmon – The new website is ready and it looks great! Thanks for all the hard work, Isabelle. The new site will be up tonight and an email will be sent out to the membership.

Publicity: Vacancy – Joe Fournet reported that news releases have been sent out for the April and May meetings and MacFest. He is looking into placing some ads for MacFest.

Vision: Joe Fournet – The two main concerns of the Vision Committee have been the lack of Apple Barrel publication and the HAAUG 25th anniversary meeting in September with Steve Wozniak.

SIG Coordinator: Phil Booth – John Reeves has decided to discontinue the AppleWorks SIG. The Photoshop SIG will be moving to the 10 a.m. slot. Randy will be doing a HAAUG Heaven SIG in April after the main presentation. He'll be discussing all the new features.

Vendor Coordinator: Rex Covington – No report was given.

Volunteer Coordinator: Vacancy – no report was given.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

Rex passed out the new badges for the board. They look very nice, Rex. Thanks!

Claire Jaschke resigned as the chairman of the 25th Anniversary Committee. Rex Covington will take over as chairman.

OLD BUSINESS

We had two evening SIGs in March that were quite successful: OS X (25 people attended) and Networking (15 people attended). We would like to expand the evening SIGs to maybe four Thursdays a month at the Internet Café in Montrose. Topics will vary.

NEW BUSINESS

The appointment of a new Apple Barrel editor was postponed for several months in accordance with George Sroka's request. George will be supervising a committee of volunteers who will put together the newsletter and he would like to see if there might be some good candidates for editor among these volunteers. The board approved the request.

HAAUG Heaven anti-spam procedures: We need to block specific addresses rather than entire domains. Randy will continue to look for a viable solution to the spam problem.

It was brought to the attention of the board that Harold Crouch put up the entire membership list on a list serve with both names and phone numbers. Jeff will contact Harold and ask him to remove the information immediately.

CompUSA will donate Apple advertising pieces to HAAUG for club auctions. The meeting was adjourned at 9:05 p.m.

HAAUG's First Macfest ~ April 26th

HAAUG's SIG Co-ordinator Phil Booth (shown above) proposed MacFest and chaired the committee that made it possible.

MacFest featured three, two-hour seminars on Mac OS X, Adobe Photoshop, and Microsoft Office. The seminars were held both in the morning and the afternoon. Houston Chronicle Columnist Bob LeVitus (above) handled the OS X seminar with his traditional flair.

who came, broken Mac in tow, with hardware and software issues.

Dr Mac

The “Mac OS X Boot Camp” that Bob LeVitus led was everything you might expect from the half-mockingly, self-described “leading authority, raconteur, and Macintosh consultant”: He reminded us—humorously at times—of the importance of backing up critical documents and settings, performing certain “regular-maintenance” routines that ensure that Macintoshes run well, and maintaining updated antivirus software; and he introduced us to various keyboard shortcuts, time- and effort-saving utilities and procedures, and new concepts that allow us to use and understand OS X better.

On the subject of backing up things, LeVitus reminded us that there are only two types of Mac users: those who have lost data not backed up, and those that will, and he revealed that he controls Dantz Retrospect, which he has running in the back-

(Microsoft) Words from David Scheuer

Office for OS X. Presentation by Bethany Mitchell of ExecuTrain

This lady got it exactly right. I already know how to point and click and the difference between “save” and “save as.” But I am not writing a book in Word, nor do I plan to plot Fibonacci retracements or Kontradief cycles using Excel. I want the experienced-user mid-level tips.

I never actually read the manuals. Not that they really give you a printed manual with Microsoft Office, it’s a .pdf file on the CD.

I won’t try to cover a two-hour session in a paragraph. In Word I learned about sending files that are versions files, tracking changes files, or have embedded notes. You can send a lot more information than you intended unless you clean it properly, before sending. Just turning an option off makes things disappear but the recipient can turn it on again. The ability to customize your tool bar including commands with custom hot keys is an often overlooked and unappreciated feature worth exploring.

In Excel I discovered the advantages of the drag/fill. It’s an intelligent drag and fill. Select a box. When that little diamond appears in lower right corner you can drag up, down or sideways and it will fill in. If it’s a formulae, it adjusts the references; if it’s a day or date, it increments. Drag up or left and it decrements. It’s handy to do from the mouse instead of having to go back up to the edit > fill menus.

Another shortcut is column width. Ever done a calculation that resulted in a number too large to display and gone to the column edge to drag the width until the numbers fit? Or used the Format > Column > width (or autofit selection) to make it visible? Double click on the right edge of the column header and it autofits – and you’re done.

We never did manage to stump the young lady. If in doubt she never guessed, she took a “let’s see” approach. Spoils a lot of blonde jokes – she’s sharp and deserving of fullest attention.

ground, with certain AppleScripts that automatically preserve his critical data four times a day. LeVitus also spoke of Carbon Copy Cloner, which creates a bootable copy of your hard drive, and commented that, while Synchronizer Pro works well, it is not a back-up program, per se. News to many Mac users was the disclosure that dragging-and-dropping folders, a procedure long used in previous OS versions for backing things up, can no longer be relied on in OS X, when dragging-and-dropping between different drives mounted on the desktop; look for details in future Apple Barrels.

Although he said that he really doesn’t like any particular antivirus software, LeVitus allowed that does rely on Virex, because it came free with his “Dot Mac” subscription. He also spoke favorably about Intego VirusBarrier, a program he was then evaluating.

On the subject of keeping your Mac’s Jaguar purring, LeVitus suggested regularly “repairing permissions,” a regular-maintenance procedure that seems as important to OS X as was rebuilding the desktop to earlier operating systems. Learn how to handle this operation at our monthly meetings.

As for useful utilities, LeVitus heartily endorsed Aladdin Systems’ “Ten for X,” consisting of Alarm Clock S.E., ExecutiveSync, FruitMenu, iClean, ideaSpiral X, LaunchBar, Limewire Pro, piPop, Pseudo, PrintMagic X, WindowShade X and Xound. Dr Mac also spoke glowingly of CopyPaste, SpellCatcher, and StickyBrain.

Photoshop Workshop

Isabelle MacCrimmon conducted a thoughtful presentation on how to use the latest refinements Adobe has applied to Photoshop, the industry standard for graphics manipulation applications. She teaches professionally at Connect Learning.

MacFest Volunteers

Kudos to those who made possible MacFest: Phil Booth, Rex Covington, Jeff Davis, Randy Herzstein, Michael Lawshae, Robert Lewis, Barbara Long, Joe Muscara, Rick Roberts, and Casey Sivula. Without their time and dedication, MacFest would not have been possible.
